

We understand our world by constructing models to predict and navigate time and space. Write about three models, how they are used, and their benefits and failings.